

Inverness Graham-backed Corsica Merges with WestView Capital Partners' AccountabillT, Establishing a National Leader in Next-Generation Managed Security and IT Services

Wayne, PA, November 24, 2025 – Inverness Graham, a Philadelphia-based buyout firm focused on acquiring innovative companies where technology is transforming traditional industries, announced today that its managed services platform Corsica Technologies (“Corsica”) has merged with AccountabillT, a Scottsdale, Arizona-based managed security service provider (“MSSP”) and managed service provider (“MSP”). The merger creates a national leader in next-generation managed technology services, expanding Corsica’s reach across the United States in delivering its AI, data integration, cloud and cybersecurity capabilities. Together, Corsica and AccountabillT will serve clients in high-cost-of-failure sectors, including healthcare, financial services, manufacturing, and government – where performance, compliance, and security are mission-critical.

“The merger of Corsica and AccountabillT marks an important milestone in our journey to build a category-leading MSP and MSSP platform,” said Trey Sykes, Managing Partner at Inverness Graham. “AccountabillT’s deep enterprise expertise and long-standing partnership with Microsoft bring complementary capabilities that elevate Corsica’s managed IT, cybersecurity, and data solutions. This combination creates a scaled, next-generation provider serving customers nationwide.”

“This is a transformative moment for Corsica,” said Brian Harmison, CEO of Corsica Technologies. “By joining forces with AccountabillT, we are combining two organizations that share a deep commitment to innovation, service excellence, and security. Together, we will deliver an expanded portfolio of intelligent, secure managed services – empowering our customers to operate more efficiently, scale confidently, and stay ahead in an evolving digital landscape.”

The combined company will leverage Corsica’s strong foundation in turnkey IT management, cybersecurity, and data integration with AccountabillT’s enterprise-grade cloud and security expertise to create one of the most comprehensive managed technology platforms in the market today.
